Work Progresses On Two Highway Jobs From Hope

Grading Four Miles Out on Highway From Hope to Blevins

GRAVELING ON NO. 4 Trucks Hauling Surface Material For the Last Rosston Link

Work is progressing rapidly on two important local highway projects. Extra work for considerable local labor will be made available Tuesday morning when Reynolds & Sutton, highway contractors, begin work on the grading of the new right-of-way for the Hope-Blevins section of No. 67, announcement of which was made elsewhere in today's Star.

Grade work on the Hope-Blevins road, which began recently at this end of the line, has moved out four miles from town, with a large construction crew employed under direction supervision of the local district office and R. B. Stanford district highway engineer.

Gravel trucks have also started the surfacing of the last link in highway No. 4 between Hope and Rosston, in Nevada county. This road is reported completed except for six miles, all in Nevada county, between Centerville and the intersection of No. 4 with the Prescott-Blevins road. Grade has been completed on No. 4 for more than a year and gravel surface should be finished within a few weeks. The road eventually will connect Hope with Camden at a distance of 48 miles, compared to 59 miles by way of Prescott.

On the Hope-Blevins project the grade has been completed about four miles north of Hope, with a view of 20 men, two graders and a caterpillar tractor making rapid progress. The surveyors are several miles ahead of the construction forces.

The road leaves Hope by way of the fertilizer plant, on what is known as the middle route to Blevins. On the map it follows the section line virtually due north to Blevins.

Prices On Cotton Are At Standstill

Exports Improved Over 1929, But September Domestic Is Low

MEMPHIS, Oct. 20.—The weekly cotton market review of the United States Department of Agriculture says:

Cotton prices during the past week changed but little. Exports continued to run above last season. Domestic consumption of raw cotton increased, but not so much in September as it is still low. Textile activity in most foreign countries continues at low levels but there was some slight improvement in Poland, France, Japan and China.

The average price of Middling 7-8 inch cotton as compiled from the quotations of the ten markets on October 17th was 9.50 compared with 9.54 October 10th and 17.22c on the corresponding date the previous season. Sales of spot cotton as reported by the ten markets amounted to 234,873 bales compared with 241,077 last week and 312,299 for the like week last season. Domestic and foreign demand for American cotton was said to have been only fair excepting in the French markets where it was said to have been active in September on the spot and far forward shipment. Inquiries seemed to be centered mostly on cottons in the lengths 7-8 inch to 11-32 inch in better white grades. Exports to October 17 amounted to 1,800,000 bales, compared with 1,700,000 last year. According to Bureau of Census, domestic consumption for September amounted to 394,321 bales compared with 545,834 for September 1929. Consumption for the two months ending September 30th was 746,656 against 1,104,588 for the same two months of last season. Cotton on hand September 30th in consuming establishments amounted to 967,936 bales, compared with 790,772 for the same date the year before. With the world's stocks of American cotton at the beginning of the season last year the present prospects are for a total supply for the 1930-31 season of 1,500,000 bales more than in the 1929-30 season.

Grade differences remained practically unchanged compared with those of previous week with the average of the ten markets October 17 for Good Middling 51 points on Middling, Strict Middling 50, Strict Low Middling 70 points off Middling and Low Middling 163.

Premium staple cottons were said to have witnessed some decline in premiums as compared with those prevailing the week before. On October 17th the average of the six quoting markets for Middling 15-16 inch was (Continued On Page Three)

T. A. Turner, Well Known Cottonseed Man, Kills Himself

Former Manager Temple Oil Company Dies at 2 This Morning

FATHER A PIONEER Son of Early County Doctor and Became Tax Assessor Here

Tom A. Turner, aged 46, widely known cotton seed man and a former tax assessor of Hempstead county, committed suicide at his home here early today by taking 13 bichloride of mercury tablets.

Mr. Turner had been manager of the Temple Cotton Oil company at its Hope plant until last Thursday, when his resignation was announced from Texarkana by J. R. Whitthorne, general manager of the company.

A petition was circulated here Saturday asking Mr. Turner's return to the company, and obtained the names of hundreds of local citizens.

Father Was Pioneer Mr. Turner was born at Spring Hill, this county, in 1884. His father, a physician, came to Hempstead county from Tennessee about 60 years ago, and was a doctor in and about Hope during the pioneer days of the city.

He was a close friend of many of Hope's oldest citizens. Dr. Turner met a tragic death when killed by a Mississippi Pacific train many years ago.

Tom Turner entered the cotton seed business at an early age. He was connected with the Southern Cotton Oil company for many years, this being a pioneer firm in this section.

He left the cotton seed business for four years to serve two terms as county tax assessor, and then returned to the business.

Joined Temple Oil He joined the Temple Cotton Oil company when that firm was established, and served it as a buyer of cotton seed up to the time of his appointment as manager of the Hope mill, several years ago.

Physicians today said that his death was caused by swallowing 13 bichloride of mercury tablets about 6 o'clock Sunday night. Doctors were called in by the family at 9, but could offer little hope. Mr. Turner died at 2 Monday morning.

He is survived by his widow and three children, two daughters, Gladys and Cora, and a son, Tom. One brother and two sisters, also survive, Jerry Turner, of Spring Hill, and W. A. Turner, of Spring Hill, and Mrs. Downs of near index.

Funeral services were to be held from the family home here at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon, in charge of the Rev. F. A. Budding and the Rev. W. B. Anderson. Interment is to be in Rose Hill cemetery. Pallbearers are:

C. Cook, Steve Carrigan, W. S. Atkins, John Barlow, O. A. Graves, Ed Brown, and Dave Finley.

There are 52 sufferers of "jakeleg" taking treatment at the poor farm. Sedgewick county has a total of 483 "jakeleg" sufferers, state board of health figures show.

Secretary Work Says Nature Best Physician

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo., Oct. 20.—(UP)—A physician himself former Interior Secretary Hubert Work, believes three-fourths of all the sick persons would recover without physicians or drugs.

This makes it possible, he told a conference of principals of schools of health here recently, for any cult or charlatan to claim cures for methods regardless of merit.

"Of the money spent on sickness," Dr. Work declared, "less than 30 per cent goes to physicians. Patent medicines take the heaviest toll. Hospitals and nurses collect the balance."

Three Confess to Murder of Texan

Man Admits That He Was Offered $500.00 of Man's Insurance Money By Latter's Wife. All Are Held to Police

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Oct. 20.—(AP)—Complaints charging murder were filed today for the murder of Daniel H. Uhr, 50 year old paralytic, who was killed Saturday morning with an axe as he slept in his home.

Three persons, Mrs. Clara Uhr, 49, wife of Uhr, Lexie Jones and D. D. Walker of Fort Sam Houston, a soldier were named in the complaints.

The three were under arrest and had made statements to the police less than twelve hours after the killing is said to have taken place.

First report of the killing was made to the officers shortly after six o'clock Saturday morning. Mrs. Uhr, told the officers that someone had cut the screen door and killed her husband.

Walker was the first one to be arrested. In his statement to the officers Walker implicated Jones. Subsequently all three were held to the police for questioning, and made written statements to the officers.

Jones admitted that he did the actual killing. Jones said, that he was introduced to Mrs. Uhr, by Walker, and that Mrs. Uhr offered him $500 of her husband's $2,500 insurance money to kill her husband.

Both Mrs. Uhr and Walker corroborated this fact, made known by Jones.

Additional plans for the annual Roll Call of the American Red Cross, which begins in Hempstead county Monday, October 27, were announced today by Mrs. N. T. Jewell, county chairman.

Mrs. Jewell has appointed the following chairmen for the City of Hope: Ward One: Mrs. John P. Vesey and Mrs. H. J. Myers.

Ward Two: Mrs. Finley Ward. Ward Three: Mrs. Ernest Wingfield. Ward Four: Mrs. Max Cox.

Town Ward: Mrs. L. Carter Johnson.

This year's Roll Call has been advanced earlier than in past seasons owing to the demand on funds of the national Red Cross organization for drought relief work in Southern and Midwestern states.

Much money has already been spent by the national organization through its Little Rock headquarters, and it is expected that the personal donations to the local chapter will be extra large this year to replenish the Red Cross treasury, both local and national. All the local reserve was spent at the opening of the fall seed planting campaign in Hempstead county, from then on the campaign was financed with national money.

Additional help was extended by the City of Hope, which gave $1,000 on the condition that an equal amount be donated by the Hempstead Quorum Court in November; but the bulk of the donations must come from private givers as in the past.

Topeka is the meeting place this week for Kiwanis delegates from Missouri, Kansas and Arkansas, and several thousand delegates are expected in the convention city.

Back in 1891, Mrs. Van Loan, then 17, says President Lincoln on one of his visits to Cleveland. She wanted to shake his hand, but secret service men prevented her.

Brimstone Greeting to Cop Costs Driver $15

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 20.—(UP)—City Judge Robert Williams assessed $15. Alexander $5 for reckless driving, declaring:

"That was not a pleasant greeting to give an officer."

The officer testified Alexander had said:

"Go to hell, officer."

"To which the officer replied: 'You go to the judge.'"

When Farmer Wheatley saw an ad in the paper: "For $5 we will tell you how to cure your horse of slobbering," he sent in the money. A few days later he received the information: "Teach him to spit."

3,000 Pounds On Opening Day Here For So. Creamery

New Operators Buying Whole Milk, Sour and Sweet Cream

DELIVER BY 10 A. M. Early Morning Receipts Requested of Milk Producers Here

Between 2,000 and 3,000 pounds of whole milk and a considerable amount of sour cream had been delivered to the former Kraft cheese factory here by 10 o'clock Monday morning, the Southern Creameries announced.

The opening day of its management of the local whole milk station.

Operation of the old cheese factory was taken over last week by Southern Creameries, and beginning today the plant is buying whole milk, sour and sweet cream from all farmers in the territory.

Four Routes Running J. J. Kirby, Jr., local manager of the Southern Ice & Utilities Co., associated company, said this morning that four of the original milk routes operated for the Kraft plant have been restored, and all others will be running shortly.

Detailed figures on the first day's milk volume, will be available Tuesday.

The Hope Chamber of Commerce, which owns the machinery in the building, and which invited the Kraft company here nearly two years ago, expressed itself as well pleased last week with the deal by which Southern Creameries took over the operation.

Market Maintained It was the chamber's plan to create a new market for whole milk and sour cream, and after an interruption of only three weeks following the Kraft company's withdrawal, milk deliveries are now being accepted in the old stand by Southern Creameries, one of the largest milk buyers in the South and Southwest.

Deliveries must reach the Hope plant by 10 o'clock every morning, the management announced.

B. & P. W. Meet In Hot Springs

Several Local Members In Attendance Over the Week End

Mrs. D. M. Stuart, president of the local B. & P. W. Club, received the following telegram from Mrs. Margaret Simms McDonald, state publicity chairman, late Saturday: "South Central Regional Conference going over big. Delegates and guests from Mississippi, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Texas, Kansas, Missouri, New York, Michigan and Florida. Hope melons used as favors at dinner tonight honoring the national president. Best publicity yet. Wish all Hope club members were with us."

Another big chapter of B. & P. W. club activity was written as a result of this conference, which was attended by a majority of the national officers, with the Hot Springs club, as official hostess, having the assistance of the Arkansas federation, and Hope's participation took tangible form in the above manner. Hope business men made this possible and contributed funds with which eighteen dozen tiny paper mache watermelons were used as favors. Each contained a tiny bag of watermelon seed and lyrics advertising this luscious product.

Dr. Etta Champlin attended from the Hope club, and was joined in Hot Springs by Mrs. W. G. McDonald of Little Rock, who retains her membership in the local organization. Nearly three hundred delegates were registered.

The conference was especially fortunate in having Miss Lona Madeline Phillips as its honor guest. Miss Phillips is a pioneer in the movement for the organization of women in business. She is a former president of the national federation and is now international president, having just returned from the world conference of B. & P. W. women in Geneva. She was the principal speaker at the International Relations banquet at the Kingsway hotel, Friday evening, bringing a report of this conference and its future aims. A feature of this session was a presentation of international folk dances by pupils of the Dorothy Donaldson school of dancing.

Miss Marion McClench of Michigan, president of the national federation, brought an optimistic message to the meeting, in which she stated that active participation in the B. & P. W. club program invariably resulted in more efficiency in business and that the health program alone had been worth a very great deal to the 60,000 members of the organization. Higher education was stressed, "at (Continued On Page Three)

Biblical Allusions Fail to Save Fines

AMERICUS, Ga., Oct. 20.—(UP)—"Thanks heaven that like Paul of olden days I am able to defend myself," Ed Wilson, negro painter, told recorder's court here when tried on a charge of threatening his wife with a pistol.

His biblical allusion did not work, however, as the court fined him $15 and his wife, Mary $7.50 when Ed displayed a badly lacerated hand, which she had cut with a knife.

"New Fangled Ideas" Don't Bother Farmer

LOGAN, O., Oct. 20.—(UP)—A farmer from a nearby town, who made a recent visit to Logan, his first in many years, just couldn't be bothered with these "new fangled ideas," such as traffic lights and regulations.

Although traffic was heavy road in to town, seated in his buggy, drove his horse through two red light signals, made a "U" turn on main street and then hitched to a light standard at a theatre entrance, a few feet from a fire plug.

Lady Continued Taking Cardui Until She Was Feeling Strong and Well.

Port Arthur, Texas.—Mrs. Alfred Kingston, of 910 Nineteenth Street, this city, says that several years ago she found herself in a run-down condition of health. "I got so weak," she says, "I could not keep up. My joints ached and I was so miserable I could hardly do my housework. I read about Cardui and how it had helped women, suffering in much the same way that I was. I got a bottle of Cardui and took it, and I then felt so much better that I continued the medicine for some time until I was really feeling strong and well. The aching in my joints left me entirely, and I was no longer troubled with bad headaches as formerly. My strength returned and I was able to do more than I had in months. Since then I have taken Cardui several times, and I have always improved after it. I have taken a course of this fine medicine."

Cardui is extracted from medicinal herbs, and contains nothing harmful. Try it in your case. TAKE CARDUI Helps Women to Health Theford's Black-Draught should also be used in connection with Cardui, as a laxative. 25¢.

KEEP YOUR REFRIGERATOR PROPERLY ICED!

The less ice there is in your refrigerator, the less chance there is for proper refrigeration. The safe-keeping of your foods and the health of your family requires that the ice compartment always be more than half full. This is as important in winter as it is in summer.

To obtain the many advantages which only ICE refrigeration offers, keep your refrigerator properly iced.

The Hall of Fame

WHO'S WHO in Baseball for 1930 contains no record of the 1931 edition will. The publications that compile records, unusual feats and review major league baseball seasons will have a spot reserved in the future for young Magnus Ott Gelbert, the shortstopper kid.

When Billy Southworth, mother of the Cardinal flock, gathered all and flew south in the spring of 1929, Magnus Ott Gelbert, now known strictly as Charley Gelbert, made the hop, too. Billy had employed the youth as shortstop on his Rochester team. He handed that young Charley to his wings in true Cardinal style.

The season of 1929 had been under way only a few weeks when Charley Gelbert became a regular on the Cardinal infield. He ascended to the regular berth almost entirely on Southworth's judgment. The Card boss let out all other candidates for the position and told Charley to go to it.

He Made the Grade

DURING two years as a major leaguer, young Gelbert has been classed as a fair fielder, but lacking in batting punch. In 1929 he played 146 games for the Cards, got 134 hits for 188 total bases, hit three home runs, stole eight bases and hung up a batting average of .261. He ranked 10th in the list of 16 shortstops who played in more than 10 games, compiling a fielding record of .977. Only Jackson of the Giants and Maranville of the Braves accepted more chances than the Cardinal rookie.

There was a decided improvement in Gelbert's play during the 1930 season, but so was there with Jackson, Maranville, Wright and English, and the young Cardinal was almost entirely overlooked by critics and fans alike. He delivered 156 hits this year, came through with another trio of home runs and joined the elite of baseball by raising his batting average to .305.

The Cat Is Out

NONE of the Cardinals, not even Gabby Street, knew until a few days ago that Charley was christened Magnus Ott Gelbert. The youth's proud father spilled the beans when he flew into St. Louis to watch his son perform in the series. And Gabby was the BAD BILL HALLAHAN, Binghamton's contribution to the world series, takes his glory modestly. . . . A scribe asked him what was the turning point in the game in which he whitewashed the A's. . . . "Ask Jimmy Wilson," was Bad Bill's answer. "I pitched according to his signals." . . . It's true that Mickey Cochrane wasn't the only catcher in the series. . . . first to say "Hello, there, Maggie!"

You couldn't expect kids to call him Magnus, and they didn't. He was "Maggie" until he took matters into his own hands after entering high school. From that time he has been Charley, until the real truth leaked out the other day. Henceforth, "Maggie" may appear frequently in connection with the young Cardinal hero.

The fans who have gibbered excitedly over the sensational young infielder had no way of knowing that Charley played through the series with a badly pulled tendon in his right leg. Charley's play didn't show it. The A's probably don't believe it. But Trainer Doc Weaver wrapped, strapped and taped that leg from the hip to the knee every afternoon of the series.

One reason advanced for Charley's brilliant performance in the series was that he expects to be married soon. If such is the case, the youth probably figured that $1700 difference between the winner's and loser's share could be put to good usage by Mr. and Mrs. Magnus Ott Gelbert.

Washington has, during a century and a decade or so existence had women's and women that and women most everything else, and Friday she had a women's baseball game. Fordyce's Victory Shows Hope Good

Malvern Held Redbugs Better Than Mighty Pine Bluff Did

Football results over the week-end gave Hope a new and powerful rating in state high school circles.

The Fordyce Redbugs smashed Pine Bluff, most famous of Arkansas high school teams, in a thrilling game at Pine Bluff, by the lop-sided score of 50 to 12. The week previous, Pine Bluff managed to tie 20 to 20 with Marshall, Texas, another blue-ribbon Southwestern high school team.

The dope has a direct bearing on Hope because the Malvern team, which Hope engaged here last Friday, held Fordyce to a 6-0 score, or 32 points better than Pine Bluff did. Hope lost to Malvern by only 26 to 7—and with Fordyce is one of the two teams to score at all against the Malvern Leopards this year.

There will be further developments in state high school football this month when Malvern plays Camden, Friday, October 31. Camden also meets Fordyce this season.

The Malvern game will give Hope a new slant on its own contest with Camden, while the Camden-Fordyce game will bring together two undefeated state champion contenders. Camden, which thus far has been favored to win the Arkansas title this year, now has a formidable competitor in Fordyce—always strong, but regarded this season as most formidable by virtue of last Saturday's sensational victory over Pine Bluff.

Adventure in the life of CELIA MITCHELL, 17, when she learns the father she has supposed is alive and well. She leaves her mysterious home in Baltimore to live in New York with her father, JOHN MITCHELL, 35, and her aristocratic grandmother.

MARGARET ROBERTS, Celia's mother, is now a widow, having divorced Mitchell and later remarried. HARRY RICHMOND, young newspaper photographer, is in love with the girl and before leaving Baltimore Celia promised to be loyal to his love.

Mitchell's new wife, EVELYN PARSONS, beautiful widow, to introduce the girl to young people. Mrs. Parsons' cousin, Frederick Celia means to win Mitchell's affections though she is jealous and once her cousin's seeming to get rid of the girl.

She introduces Celia to TOD JORDAN, business man, but of this she can't encourage the match. LISA LUNCAN, socially prominent, becomes Celia's best friend. Mitchell learns Jordan is paying his daughter attention and forbids her to see him. Celia sends her grandmother and the elderly Mrs. Mitchell feelings ill and departs for a rest.

First comes Mrs. Parsons' Long Island home for a lengthy visit. There Jordan enters frequently. Mitchell's arrival seems about to propose marriage to Mrs. Parsons when Celia interrupts. Next when opportunity offers he does not introduce the subject. Celia and Jordan go to a supper club dance and there encounter EYE BROOKS, whose marriage does not interfere with her situation.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIII

A WAITER who appeared to know Jordan led them to a table before a window overlooking the porch.

"Have you been here before?" Celia asked.

"Yes—once or twice. Not recently." Jordan looked away as he spoke.

"Well, I think it's lovely here. I'm glad you brought me!"

"Better order before we dance. What do you want?"

Celia looked over the menu card and made her selection. Jordan gave the order to the waiter, who nodded and disappeared.

The orchestra leader at the far side of the room raised his baton. The first bars of "In Montenegro" floated out on the air. The leader was a blond youth, slim and with a boyish face. Now he raised his megaphone and was singing the ballad.

"That—it's our song!"

"What do you mean?"

Before Celia could explain a soprano laugh interrupted.

"Well, imagine finding you two here!"

Eve Brooks was coming toward them. Her scarlet lips were bowed in a satirical smile. Eve's eyes were bright, her laughter a trifle unsteady and too high-pitched.

"Why—Eve! Won't you join us?" Celia tried to appear cordial.

"Thanks, yes."

Jordan had risen and drawn out a chair. Eve sank into it.

"Is your husband here?" Celia asked. "Find him and bring him over, Tod."

Eve lifted a hand in protest. "Not Courtney!" she smiled. "I'd have to get out a search warrant to locate that lad! Haven't seen him for two days. He's supposed to be on a fishing trip, but I'm not so sure. No, darling, I'm here with a nice little boy friend I picked up last week-end. Frederick's his name. Oh, there he is!"

Mrs. Brooks half rose, waving a hand at a young man in the middle of the room who appeared to be hunting someone. He came toward them.

"Frederick, I've run into some people I know. Miss Mitchell, Mr. Ward. And Mr. Jordan."

There were "how-do-you-do's" and then the youth known as Frederick sat down. He was mildly good looking in a way which did not differentiate him from hundreds of other young men.

"THAT'S good music," Tod Jordan said. He appeared ill at ease. "Shall we dance?"

"I'd love to!" Eve was on her feet at once. Celia glanced up, startled. She was sure Tod had not meant to ask Eve to dance the first dance with him. Already they were moving away in the crowd.

"Will you dance, Miss Mitchell?" Celia smiled. She rose and slipped into Frederick Ward's arms.

She could see Tod and Eve across the room. Eve's head was close to Tod's shoulder. A wave of anger passed over the girl. She told herself it was not jealousy. Eve had no right to make such an exhibition of herself. Eve was married and should leave Tod Jordan alone!

Celia scarcely thought about the young man who was dancing with her. He was a satisfactory partner. Their steps matched, but Celia was preoccupied.

They were first to return to the table. Eve and Tod appeared a minute later. Eve was laughing and Jordan's face was white. He looked angry. He did not sit down, but made an excuse. Something about getting cigarettes, which was ridiculous because the waiter would have brought them.

Eve eyed the young man's back as he disappeared. Then her lips set in a hard line.

"Now yourself out, Frederick," she said. "I want to talk to Celia."

Frederick Ward rose and moved away.

"Now then," Eve said, turning her smile on Celia. "We can talk. How well you're looking tonight, my dear."

"I'm glad you think so."

"Oh, you look marvelous. You should always wear white, darling. It gives you that innocent, childish appearance."

The girl stirred uncomfortably. "Really, Eve," she said, "do I seem so awfully old-fashioned?"

Her companion laughed again. "My dear, you're precious! One would actually think you did it unconsciously. Of course I know you don't! No one could be so angelic in reality. That's why I think it's so screaming to see you with Tod."

Celia straightened.

"You seem to know Tod Jordan rather well," she said.

"Well, I should hope so!" Eve glanced about her casually, then lowered her voice. "He wants me to marry him. Sometimes I don't know—of course I've never been really happy with Courtney."

"YOU mean—a divorce?" Involuntarily Celia drew back. "Well, why not? They're good this season. And Tod really is a level look!" Evelyn put her finger on the widest, most dazzling of the bracelets on her arm. It was a woven band of diamonds and sapphires, a blaze of white fire and blue radiance.

"Tod gave it to me," Eve said softly. "No wonder I'm wild about him!"

Celia looked away. In one crash her dream castle had fallen. Tod in love with Eve! The bracelet. Tod in love with Eve! But it couldn't be!

She could not trust herself to speak.

"Here comes Tod now," Celia could hear Eve Brooks' voice vaguely. She saw that Tod was approaching them. Her Tod—no, not after the terrible things Eve had said! Oh, the whole world was a nightmare!

Celia rose as Jordan reached the table.

"I—I think I'd like to go out on the porch," she said. "I don't feel well."

The young man bent over her so. "Sorry," he said. "Here—we'll go this way."

Without a word to Eve he led Celia out of the room to the broad porch. The girl drew a deep breath of the fresh air.

"Cooler here," Jordan was saying. "Lord, but you're pale! How about ice water? Is there anything I can get?"

Celia shook her head.

"Sit down, Tod," the girl said. "There's something I want to ask you."

"What's on your mind?"

Celia's lips trembled. For a moment she studied, wondering how to begin.

"Sometimes," she said hesitantly, "when we've been together you've said that you—cared for me."

Jordan bent his head to hear the whisper.

"Of course, dear. You know I do."

"You mean that?"

"Why, Celia, what a question! Did you bring me all this way just for that? You know I love you!"

"Tell me again."

"Foolish! What in the world has gotten into your head tonight?"

"But tell me, Tod."

"All right. Once and for all, Colia Mitchell, in these highly public surroundings I say I love you. And if there weren't so confoundingly many people around I'd make it convincing! Now what's all this about anyhow?"

Celia was looking away from him. She bit her lip.

"It's about the bracelet you gave Eve."

"The what?"

"The bracelet—diamonds and sapphires you gave Eve Brooks."

"WHAT are you talking about?" he said roughly. "I never gave Eve Brooks a bracelet!"

"She said you did."

"Well, it's not true." The man laughed shortly. "Where'd I get money enough to buy diamond bracelets? If I had I'd offer them to you. What's Eve talking about anyhow? Such nonsense!"

"But, Tod, she told me you gave her the bracelet! She said you wanted to marry her!"

"Oh—that woman! Celia, it's not true. I don't know anything more I can say to you except that it's not true!"

Celia looked into the man's angry eyes. Yes, he meant what he said. It was not true. Tears of happiness rose before her.

"Then everything's all right again?"

"Of course it is."

She reached for Jordan's hand and clasped it tightly. Celia was radiant. The man beside her seemed less exuberant. Suddenly the girl's expression changed.

"Listen, Tod," she said, "I'm not going to have Eve Brooks spreading stories like that about you."

"Oh, now, Celia," Jordan began uncomfortably, "we don't want to make a scene. That's all in the world that would happen. You know Eve! She'd get hysterical, and there's no telling what she'd do."

"Why, Tod, you talk as though—"

"See here! Did we come out to quarrel about Eve Brooks or to have some pleasure? You'd better powder your nose and fix your hair and then we'll go inside. Seems to me I ordered something to eat several hours ago."

Meekly Celia opened her vanity case and dusted her face with the tiny puff. They returned to the dining room. One darting look told Celia that Eve had disappeared.

"Where's the waiter?" Jordan growled.

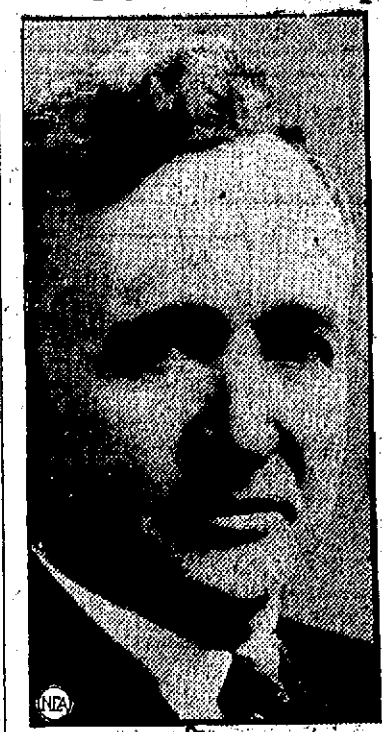

On the table beside the windows were two melted ices. Jordan found the man who had taken the order, told him to bring a second. Afterward they danced, but the fine edge of the evening had been dulled. It was early when they returned to Larchwood. Jordan said good night and left immediately.

An hour later he entered the living room of Eve Brooks' apartment.

"Well," he said angrily, "so you've taken to telling tales!"

Southern Dean Declares It's "A Fool's Paradise"

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 20.—(UP)—"Man must get back to a sane and sound standard of living," Dean L. H. Nee of St. Mary's Cathedral, Memphis, declared in a sermon after President

Hoover delivered his economic address to the bankers at Cleveland.

"It is a high standard of living panic which has shut down factories and thrown me out of work. During the past 10 years man has taken 200 articles out of the luxury class and put them in the class of necessities.

"We can get nowhere by living in a fools paradise."

Ice Contracts To Give Winter Jobs

Thousands of ice deliverymen are thrown out of work each fall due to the lack of appreciation of the benefits of all year round refrigeration.

"Because of the prevailing practice of falsely 'economizing' on ice during the months of November, December and February," says J. J. Kirby, Jr., local manager for the Southern Ice & Utilities Co. "The ice-man's job is a seasonal one, when it should be an all year round job."

"Ice," he continues, "is as necessary for proper food preservation in winter as it is in summer. Ice should be used constantly, and the refrigerator ice compartment should always be at least half full. When foods are placed on a window sill or in an outside box, they are put at the mercy of treacherous temperature changes, which at any time of the year are incapable of protecting and preserving perishable foods. If allowed to freeze, many fruits and vegetables lose their food value."

"Proper refrigeration, means the preservation of foods, protection of health, and prevention against costly spoilages, can be obtained only from low, even temperatures which are constantly maintained. A well-insulated refrigerator plus an ample supply of ice, is the best known method of obtaining proper refrigeration.

"Any doctor or home economics teacher will agree that the few cents that a housewife saves during the winter months through eliminating the use of ice, are eaten up by unnecessary food spoilages, losses etc. In addition, she unknowingly gambles with the health of her loved ones by serving foods which have not been safely kept.

Car Load Turkey Feed For Blevins

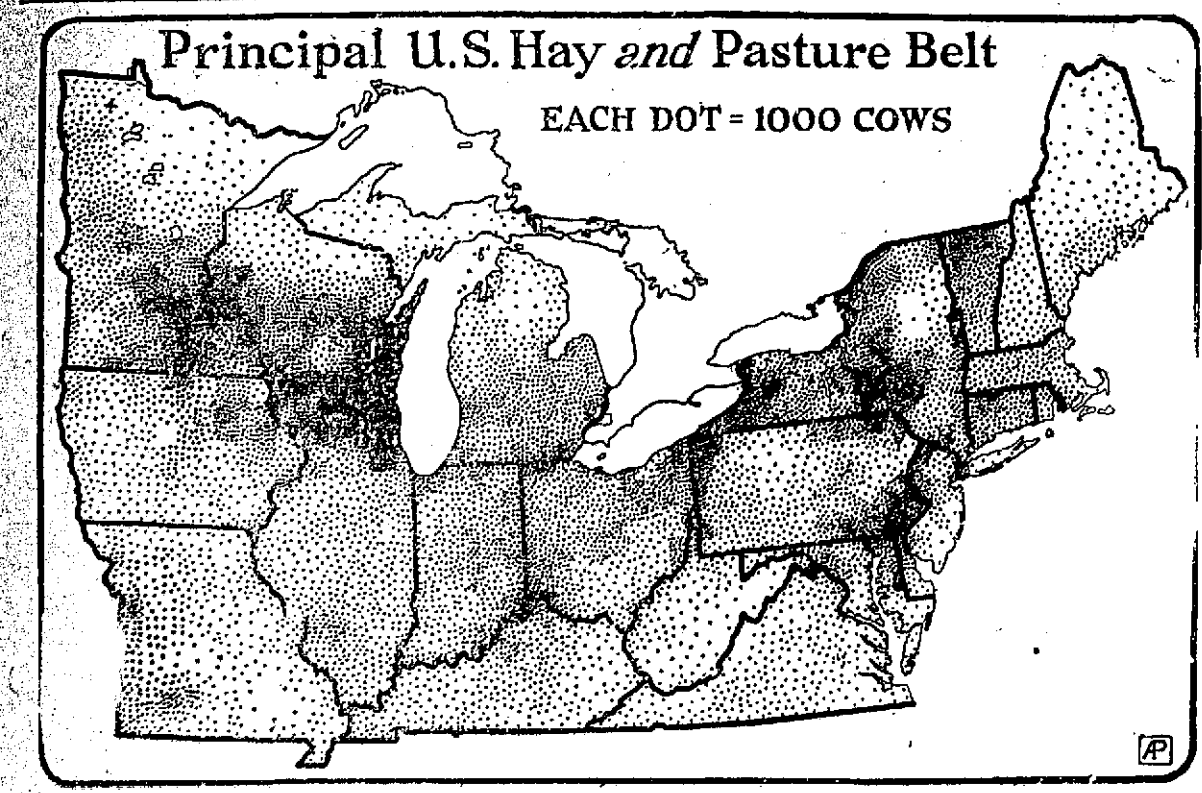

Mash For Fattening Turkeys Expected to Arrive This Week

A car load of fattening mash, to be used for the next thirty days in fattening the Thanksgiving turkey crop in the Blevins territory is expected to arrive in Blevins the first part of this week.

This soft feed will be fed in hoppers as a fattening feed for the turkeys that are expected to be put on the Thanksgiving market. It is mixed with ingredients that furnish three qualities desired by those who purchase turkey meat. These are: white meat, tender meat and juicy meat.

About ten to fifteen days before the birds are marketed milk is added to their diet.

Drouth Boosts Use Of Pasture Fertilizer; It Is Urged To Cut Costs and Aid Feed Supply

This map shows distribution of dairy cattle in the hay and pasture belt where short rations, as a result of the summer drouth, threaten approximately 12,000,000 cows.

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—(AP)—Pasture fertilization, a familiar practice in Europe, but practically unknown to American farmers, has been encouraged by the drouth to make its debut in the great hay and pasture belt where short rations threaten 12,000,000 dairy cows.

Eventual use of 1,000,000 tons of pasture fertilizer annually in the dairy region is predicted by J. B. Abbott, agronomist of the National Fertilizer association and himself a farmer of Bellevue Falls, Va.

His prediction was made in an address prepared for a conference in New York October 16 between the association and the farm press of the nation.

Other farmers also left their furrows to bring to Broadway an account of personal pasture demonstrations and acquaint farm editors with the economic side of the movement.

Turkey Growers To Increase Flocks

Two Growers Plan To Raise 1000 Head Next Season

Two turkey growers, each of whom have approximately turkeys to market this fall, have expressed a desire to go into the business on a larger scale another year.

These men, Cecil Sewell and Warren Nesbitt, both near Blevins and have had a successful year thus far. They are planning to keep enough selected hen turkeys another year to raise 1000 head for the market in the fall of 1931.

Rapid Growth For Fall Crops Shown

Several Hundred Acres of Wheat, Oats and Rye in Blevins Territory

More than 1000 bushels of wheat, oats and rye was planted in the Blevins territory this fall. Of this acreage the crop is up and rapid growth has been reported on many fields.

Some of this acreage was planted early for poultry. Some of the turkey growers are already grazing their birds on fall crops.

Much of this acreage will be used for grazing purposes this fall and winter and then will be turned under as green substance for the soil. Others who have this crop will allow it to mature and harvest it for hay in the summer.

Fall Gardens Are Help To Citizens

Much Winter Food Can be Made For Winter From Fall Gardens

Most every home in Hempstead county has a nice fall garden. Because of the unusually dry year it has convinced everyone of the importance of food conservation.

Mrs. O. A. McKnight, of the Cross Roads community, has either put up or helped to put up for her neighbors, within the last month the following: 17 quarts of culled chickens; 9 quarts of okra, egg plant and butter beans; 18 quarts of beef and 67 quarts of field peas.

This will mean a great deal of food for winter months. Now is the time for everyone to put everything possible into cans.

Machine Peels 'Spuds' Now; 'K. P.' Relieved Of Old Job

Peeling potatoes by hand has been found too costly and wasteful, so this machine skins 'em a rate of 10 minutes to the 100-pound sack.

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—(AP)—The World war veteran who did some of his campaigning against a stack of potatoes with a peeling knife as a weapon should see how they uncover the "spud" today.

The machine age has relieved the "k. p." of his most obnoxious task.

An efficiency expert found that hand peeling was too costly, so a machine now does the job. Each regiment of the Illinois national guard has a peeling machine.

The company "k. p.'s" bring along their potatoes, dump them in the hopper, and carry them back to the cook shack—peeled.

Peeling "spuds," under the old regulation, generally was a punishment. Minor infractions of the military law were given the task. Rookies, too, were given it. It was considered a disciplinary task.

But too many potatoes were thrown away with the parings, or the parings were too thick—hence the machine.

The typical potato peeler skins 25 pounds in two minutes and disposes of a sack of 100 pounds in 10 minutes. It is frugal about the thickness of the peeling.

During a 15-day encampment it was estimated that the machines saved 10,000, or 100 sacks of potatoes. Nine thousand men were fed daily at the camp.

Wheat Good Grain Feed For Livestock

Car Expected To Be Made Up For Hope Within Few Days

Wheat is the crop with a surplus this year; therefore we have a condition existing with respect to this grain which seldom exists in the south where we grow no wheat and where the average farmer is unacquainted with its value as a feed to the various kinds of livestock. The following information put out by G. Bohstedt of the University of Wisconsin who has reviewed a host of experimental results where one grain has been compared with other grains, and where these have been fed to various classes of livestock. As a result of all this study of scientific data on the subject Mr. Bohstedt prepared the following table from which any one can determine which grain they should buy.

Relative values for Cattle, Sheep and Horses:

Corn	1.00
Wheat	1.07
Barley	.81
Oats	.49
Rye	.95

Relative values for hogs:

Wheat	1.12
Oats	.46

When corn is worth $1.00 per bushel wheat is worth $1.07 for cattle, sheep and horses; and worth $1.12 for hogs. These values are figured out on the basis of 56 pounds per bushel for corn, 60 pounds for wheat, etc.

We in Hempstead county are able to get No. 1 wheat delivered to us at $1.00 per bushel, and from the above information it is easy to see that at this price corn will have to be selling for about 90 cents per bushel in order to be worth as much as the wheat. Corn cannot be bought that cheap; therefore wheat is the more economical feed at this time.

Co-operative shipments of wheat are being made. List with the county agent for your wheat at once.

Blevins Firm Sell Large Cotton List

H. M. Stephens Sells 150 Bales to McFaddin Brothers

H. M. Stephens last week sold 150 bales of cotton at the Hope compress to K. G. McFaddin, Jr., who is agent for McFaddin Brothers, large cotton dealers.

This is the largest list of cotton sold from Blevins this season.

The Blevins gin has turned out a little more than 500 bales so far this year. It is estimated that there will be about 150 or 200 more bales ginned before the season closes.

Claim Aluminum Process

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (UP)—S. P. Foster, Aulton Park chemist and inventor, claims to have found a new process by which aluminum can be derived from bauxite ore more efficiently than under present methods. His process, he said, eliminates the use of caustic soda, now imported at heavy expense.

Blevins-Delight in Scoreless Draw

Captain Clyde Self Leads Team in a Fast Snappy Game

In keeping with previous expectations Blevins and Delight played a very interesting game of football on the Blevins field Friday. The score was 0 to 0, and two more evenly matched teams never faced each other. In all departments of the game they broke about even. Blevins made seven first downs and Delight six. Two of Blevins downs were aided by penalties, while Delight made six without the aid of penalties.

In the aerial game Blevins completed three passes out of ten attempts for a gain of sixty yards. Delight completed seven of twelve tries, but three of the lateral variety lost instead of gaining ground. Not more than 50 yards were gained by their overhead attack. Delight intercepted two of Blevins' passes, and Blevins one of theirs.

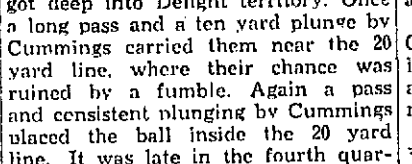

In kicking they were about even. Perhaps the Delight punter placed his kicks better, but Brown made several sensational returns of punts for Blevins, which were easily the feature of the game.

Several near threats to score were made, but perhaps the nearest consummation of that event was made by Delight late in the second quarter. They gained possession of the ball inside the twenty yard line as a result of a fumble by Blevins. Two line plays failed to gain, and a pretty pass over the goal line to a clear receiver was missed by inches. Again in the third period Delight carried the ball deep into Blevins territory through three consecutive first downs, made chiefly by short passes. But they again lost the ball by an incomplete pass over the goal line. Twice Blevins got deep into Delight territory. Once a long pass and a ten yard plunge by Cummings carried them near the 20 yard line, where their chance was ruined by a fumble. Again a pass and consistent plunging by Cummings placed the ball inside the 20 yard line. It was late in the fourth quarter and the team was almost desperate in its attempt to score. A fumble lost six yards. Two running plays failed to gain, but on the fourth down, after a teammate had fumbled, Brown grabbed the ball and squirmed through the entire Delight team for fourteen yards, being thrown out of bounds on the 11 yard line. This was two yards short of first down, however, and the ball went over. It was the deepest either team carried the ball into the others territory.

It was a fast game with few penalties. Delight was penalized five yards twice for offside. Blevins was penalized fifteen yards for a substitute talking too quick after entering the game. Delight called time out three times and Blevins once.

The Blevins team has no captain for the season but elects one just before each game. Clyde Self received the honor Friday and rewarded his mates by turning in a great defensive game at left guard. Many a good charge by Delight backs was rendered fruitless by his hard and sure tackling.

Family Reunion Is Held Near Prescott

Mrs. J. T. Stewart Celebrates 86th Birthday; Many Guests Present

A family reunion was held at the home of Mrs. J. T. Stewart near Prescott, October 16, celebrating her 86th birthday. The reunion was a surprise to her. She had thought about the day before her birthday but had not thought that it would be any different from any other day. About 10 o'clock the folks began to come in. After several families had arrived it dawned upon Mother that something special had been planned. By 11:30 all the children and many others were there. Every family had prepared something good to eat and by the time every one had brought their little bit a feast was ready to serve. At 12 o'clock the dinner was ready to be eaten. Two tables had been placed together and they were laden with everything imaginable.

The honored guest was Mrs. J. W. Nelson of Blevins, a brother of Mrs. Stewart's, who is 76 years old, and the only living brother or sister. Other guests were Mrs. Mattie Trevillion, Mrs. Nancy Peachey, Mrs. Alva Francisco, Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Stewart and daughter, Catherine, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Stewart and little son, John Robert, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Huskey, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Hunt and children, George Jr. and Gladys, Mpe Peachey, Sidney Peachey. The out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Stewart and little son, Dwight, of Blevins, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Wade of Blevins, Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Cook of Garland, Miss Roffie Ashby of Little Rock, Mrs. Minnie Peachey of Nashville.

Dr. S. J. Hoesley, the family physician, came out in the afternoon and brought Mother Stewart several different gifts, which he recommended would be good for her health. Everyone appreciated his visit and hope he can be with us on several other such occasions.

All the afternoon was spent in talking over olden times bringing up things that were done by all when they were just children. An enjoyable time was had by everyone and all expect to be back next year and have a greater time.

Growers Expect to Ship Fall Radishes

Approximately 100 Acres Fall Radishes Sown Near Blevins

It is expected that a car or more of fall radishes will be shipped from Blevins the latter part of this week. The crop is reported to be unusually crisp and tender this fall, due to the fact that the growth has been made quickly.

Approximately 100 acres have been sown in the Blevins territory according to some of the growers.

The price received will depend largely upon whether the frost in the northern and northeastern states falls early enough to kill out the home grown crop up there.

Our Poultry Column Edited by Prof. Frederic H. Stoneburn

ARTIFICIAL illumination of poultry houses and the installation of necessary lighting equipment were discussed in an earlier article in this series. Some considerations in connection with the use of lights in poultry production are now presented.

The lights should be so managed as to cause all layers to do their best work but a tendency to force the birds beyond their capacity must be avoided. It follows, then, that the stock should be painstakingly sorted into flocks which are uniform in character and each flock treated as a separate unit when fixing the lighting schedule. Nothing is to be gained from using lights on mixed flocks of hens and pullets or of pullets in different stages of maturity. Under such conditions a program exacting the requirements of the birds will not meet the requirements of others. It is plain, then, that uniformity of the stock is an essential where artificial lights are used.

LIGHTING pullets—Fully matured pullets of high producing strains may be given light as soon as the days become relatively short. Such, however, do not require the maximum length of day in order to lay well. Give them sufficient light to enable them to obtain all needed feed but do not force them to the point where they lose weight. This tendency can be corrected by regulating the proportions of egg mass and scratch grain and by reducing the hours of light.

Slow-maturing and late pullets on the other hand, may well be given the maximum amount of illumination to hasten growth and quickly bring them into producing form. The feeding method, of course, must be suited to the requirements of the case. One's efforts should be directed toward causing these birds to make complete physical development before they begin to drop eggs. If they lay before they are fully developed they will usually produce eggs of small size and too often will soon "burn out" because of lack of reserve flesh. Often they will go into a neck molt and practically cease laying for several weeks. Hence in the case of late pullets lights are helpful but correct feeding practice is essential.

LIGHTING mature hens—Adult hens which go into molt at the average date, as late August or September while the days are still fairly long, may well be given a rest period while renewing their plumage and regulating their weight. By November such should show a return of pigment in skin, beak and shanks and they may then be given a twelve-hour working day.

The late molters, usually the best layers, will shed their plumage in October and November when they will go out of production. Such should have a complete rest for at least two weeks because the days are too short to enable them to secure the amount of feed necessary to quick recovery from the molt. Therefore they should be given the benefit of eleven hours of light daily until they naturally come into good production when an hour or two of additional light may well be given.

LIGHTING breeders—The quality of hatching eggs and the resulting condition of the breeding stock. Hens which have been laying heavily for some months do not produce as good eggs for hatching as do those which have had a good rest prior to the breeding season.

The breeding stock, then, may well be kept under natural conditions until the breeding season approaches. About three to four weeks before hatching eggs are wanted lights may be used to increase the working day to twelve or thirteen hours and, if in good condition, the birds will quickly respond with a big yield.

I wish to again stress the fact that the benefits from lighting the pens are largely the result of enabling the birds to eat more feed for sustaining their bodies and making eggs. A big output of eggs is the result of heavy feeding. Those who cannot use lights can at least induce their birds to eat heavily during daylight.
